

Managerial Accounting

The purpose of this course is to provide students with the skills necessary to use information in financial reports in order to make business decisions, especially information that is oriented toward future trends and events, as well as toward internal reporting. Throughout the semester, students will be presented with coursework in which the central focus will be on budgeting, as a source for prognostic information for any company's management. Other topics covered include reporting in different business segments and accounting in responsibility centers. This course will also cover some of the newest types of internal reports available to companies, generated by methods such as BSC (Balanced Scorecard) and SHV (Shareholder Value). Students will also complete a number of assignments and case studies with practical applications.
